

THE HUMBLE
PETITION
OF

The Gentrie and Commons of the Countie of YORKE, presented to His Majestie at York, April 22. 1642.

AND
His Majesties Message sent to the Parliament, April 24.

1642.

Concerning Sir John Hobsons Refusal to give His Majestie Entrance into Hull.

LONDON:

Printed by ROBERT BARKER, Printer to the Kings most Excellent Majestie: And by the Assignes of JOHN BILL.

1642.

To the Kings most Excellent Maiestie.

The humble Petition of the Gentry and Commons of the County of Yorke.

Most Royall Sovereign,

 Encouraged by Your Majesties many Testimonies of Your gracious goodnesse to us and our Coun-tie, which we can never sufficiently acknowledge; We in all duty and loyalty of heart addressie our selves to your Sacred Majestic, beseeching You to cast Your eyes and thoughts upon the safety of Your own Person and Your Princely Issue, and this whole Countie, a great meanes of which we conceive doth consist in the Arms and Ammunition at Hull; placed there by Your Princely care and charge, and since upongenerall apprehension of dangers from Forreign parts

A 2 : represented represented to Your Majestie, thought fit as yet to be continued. We for our parts, conceiving ourselves to be still in danger, do most humbly beseech Your Majestie that You will be pleased to take such course and order that Your Magazine may still there remain, for the better securing of these and therest of the Northerne parts: And the rather because we think it fit, that that part of the Kingdom should be best provided where Your Sacred Person doth reside; Your Person being like Davids, The light of Israel, and more worth then ten thousand of us.

Who shall daily pray, &c.

of His

¶ His Majesties Message sent to the Parliament, April 24. 1642.

Concerning Sir John Hothams Refusal to give His Majesties Entrance into Hull.

HIS MAJESTY having receaved the petition presented from most of the chief of the Gentry neare about York, desiring the stay of His Majesties Arms and Munitiōn in his Magazine at Hull, for the safetie (not onely of his Majesties Person and Children, but likewise of all these Northern parts: The maine falsrumours of great Dangars inducing them to make their late Supplication.) Thought it most fit to go himselfe in Person to his Towne of Hull, to view his Arms and Munitiōn there, that thereupon he might give Directions, what part thereof might be necessary to remain there, for the security and satisfaction of his Northern Subjects, and what part thereof might be spared for Ireland, The arming of his Majesties Scots Subjects that are to go thither, Or to replenish his chiefest Magazine of the Tower of London; where being come upon the three and twentieth of this instant April, much contrary to his expectation, he found all the Gates shut upon him, and the Bridges drawn up, by the express command of Sir John Hotham, (who for the present commands a Garrison there) and from the walls flatly denied his Majestie Entrance into his said Town, the reason of the said demand being as strange to his Majestie, as the thing it self, It being, That he could not admit his Majestie without breach of Trust to his Parliament, which did the more incense his Majesties anger against him, for that he most Seditionously and Traiterously would have put his disobedience upon his Majesties Parliament; which his Majestie being willing to

to clear, demanded of him if he had the impudence to aver, that the Parliament had directed him to deny his Majestie entrance, and that if he had any such Order, that he should shew it in writing, for otherwise his Majestie could not beleev it; which he could no wayes produce, but maliciously made that false interpretation according to his own Inferences, confessing that he had no such positive Order, which his Majestie was ever confident of: But his Majestie not willing to take so much pains in vain, offered to come in to that his Town onely with twentie Horse, finding that the maine of his pretence lay, That his Majesties Traine was able to Command the Garrison: Notwithstanding, his Majestie was so desirous to go thither in a private way, that he gave warning thereof but overnight; which he refusing, but by way of Condition (which his Majestie thought much below him) held it most necessarie to declare hym Traitor (unlesse upon better thoughts, he should yeeld obedience)

ence which he doubtly deserved, as well for retarding Entrance to his naturall Sovereign, as by laying the reaon thereof groundlessly and maliciously upon His Parliament.

One Circumstance his Majestie cannot forget, That his Son the Duke of York, and his Nephew the Prince Elector, having gone thither the day before, Sir John Horham delayed the letting of them out to his Majestie till after some consultation.

Whereupon his Majestie hath thought it expedient to demand Justice of his Parliament against the said Sir John Horham, to be exemplarily inflicted on him according to the Laws, and therather, because his Majestie would give them a fit occasion to free themselves of this imputation, by him so injuriously cast upon them, to the end his Majestie may have the easier way for the chastising of so high a disobedience.